Gain skills to engage and support people

What do you say to someone hesitant about getting vaccinated? How do you address a resident's family member with concerns about a new treatment?

These situations can be difficult and uncomfortable. But they don't have to be.

Our newest workshop, Skills to Engage and Support People, will help you have conversations with respect and curiosity that make others feel heard, supported, and valued.

You'll learn the fundamentals of motivational interviewing—a style of communication designed to strengthen someone's commitment to change—and be able to apply it to your work.

Our next session is happening virtually on May 27.

Live interactive demo: Clinical use of overhead and passive lifting slings

May 15
Webinar

When you're performing a lift, the type of sling you use matters. Join us on May 15, for a live interactive demo covering the features and assessment criteria of common passive loop slings.

You'll come out of this session with a stronger understanding of sling selection to meet individual care needs.

Question of the week

This week's question is: What's one thing you have learned in a SafeCare BC workshop or webinar?

Send your answers to zbutler@safecarebc.ca, and we'll feature them in next week's issue.
